

Boufaden, N., Hoang, T. L. et P. Dumouchel. « Détection et prédiction de la satisfaction des usagers dans les dialogues personne-machine » dans Conférence sur le Traitement Automatique des Langues Naturelles (TALN 2007). Toulouse, France, 5-8 juin 2007.

Abstract

We study the usefulness of named entities and acknowledgment words for user satisfaction classification and prediction from Human-Computer dialogs. We show that named entities and acknowledgment words do not enhance baseline classification performance. However, they allow a better prediction of user satisfaction in the beginning of the dialogue.

Keywords: prediction of user satisfaction, Human-Computer dialog classification.